

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

I am very grateful to a number of people who assisted with the production of this third edition of Republic to Reich. My association with McGraw-Hill began in 1975, over thirty years ago, and in all that time the production staff have been unfailingly professional. The present team who worked on this new edition is no exception. I wish to acknowledge my Production Editor Samantha Miles, the Copy Editor Pauline O'Carolan, Jan Schmoeger, who worked on the design of the new edition, and Rima Kandalaft who provided valuable comment and review of the work. My collaboration with Philip Fielden, who contributed the section on Personalities—Riefenstahl and Speer—has once again been a particularly pleasant association. His knowledge of the subject and his commitment to imparting this knowledge to students is impressive. Finally, I owe a very special debt to my Acquisitions Editor Eiko Bron. His patient understanding and his unfailing support was much appreciated and was a major element in the successful production of this new edition.

To my family, as always, thank you for the support and the understanding that writing is a long and lonely business that takes time.

JAMES MASON OAM

I would like to make a special acknowledgement and thank you to the book's Acquisitions Editor Eiko Bron. He has guided the production with enthusiasm, warm encouragement and his own remarkable knowledge of the period. Also, my grateful thanks to the HSIE Faculty of The Hills Grammar School in Sydney for their continuing advice, support and inspiration. I would like to say thank you to Megan and Oliver who had to accept 'the book' taking me away from my family for so long. Finally, I dedicate Section 4 of this book to my parents, Mark and Margaret, who did so much to inspire my love of history. From Beamish Industrial Museum in the pouring rain to the beautiful chateaux of France—I loved (nearly) every minute of it.
